Cross-border mobility of workers

6-8 November 2013, Osijek

Dr. Erika Kovács, PhD, Assistant Professor, Pécs
Mario Vinković, PhD, Associate Professor, Osijek

The course “Cross-border mobility of workers”, including regional migration of workers, aims to give students an understanding of the impact of cross-border mobility for the achieving the goals of the revised Lisbon Strategy and implementation of the European Employment Strategy. Labour mobility, migration and commuting have not been enough a subject of traditional socio-legal and economic theory and teaching. Free movement of labour constitutes one of the central principles of the EU and is an important component of the single market and a core element of regional development in terms of employment. Workers mobility has been identified as a key factor to stimulate growth and employment in Europe. Globalisation and economic restructuring has led to the identification of new cross-border imbalances in specific sectors of activity. Course is created not only with the aim to give the students a specific level of knowledge about the topic, but also try to give the answer about the impact of cross-border mobility of workers on local and regional development.
